

Andrew Dampier

Personal Qualifications and Experience

Mr Dampier joined Keith Borer Consultants in 2019 after 35 years' service with Kent Police. He spent 30 years as a serving officer, including over 15 years working within the Serious Crime Directorate, advising on telephone strategy and presenting evidence at court in a number of high profile cases.

This included Homicide Investigations, Domestic Extremism, Robbery, Terrorism and Child Exploitation, County Lines Drug Investigation etc. He also routinely assisted in "live time" call data analysis in order to help locate vulnerable missing persons or fugitives unlawfully at large.

In 2013 Mr Dampier was appointed as Kent Police's first ever dedicated Digital Media Investigator advising Senior Investigating Officers on Digital Investigation Strategies as well as a "hands on investigator" in respect of cell site/call data analysis and attribution.

Mr Dampier lectured new police recruits and experienced detectives alike on investigative opportunities provided by cell site and call data analysis and how this evidence was best presented in court.

During his career he received several Judge's and Chief Constable's commendations including two Judges' commendations purely in respect of his presentation of cell site evidence at court. He has excellent courtroom experience and skills and has appeared at Crown Court well over one hundred times, the majority being in respect of cell site analysis.

Mr Dampier is well known to advocates in the Kent and Essex courts and is well respected for his professional, confident, independent and courteous manner.

He has received training from both defence and prosecution experts in cell site propagation and surveying. He has also received formal analytical training in call data analysis and presentation.

At Keith Borer Consultants, Mr Dampier undertakes continuous professional development through attendance at digital forensics seminars and workshops, research and other specific technical training.
